

Strangulated obturator hernia: Report of 2 Cases

Nizar Kardoun<sup>1</sup>, Zied Hadrich<sup>2</sup>, Abderrahmen Masmoudi<sup>1</sup>, Housseem Harbi<sup>1</sup>, Salah Boujelben<sup>1</sup>, and Rafik Mzali<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Habib Bourguiba Hospital

<sup>2</sup>University of Sfax Faculty of Medecine of Sfax

May 14, 2021

Abstract

Obturator hernia is a rare condition. It is more commun in women than men owing to their greater width of the pelvis and larger obturator canal. We report 2 cases of strangulated obturator hernia, which were preoperatively diagnosed, in 2 female patients without previous history of abdominal surgery.

Hosted file

Strangulated obturator hernia.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/412998/articles/522061-strangulated-obturator-hernia-report-of-2-cases>

