

Why positive results from protein test strips in urine samples in men can put the patient's health at risk due to over-treatment

Dr. Carolina Diamandis<sup>1</sup>, Yousef Abbas<sup>1</sup>, and Jonathan Feldman<sup>1</sup>

<sup>1</sup>Affiliation not available

November 8, 2021

Abstract

Testing for microscopic blood traces, protein and other parameters by means of test strips has been a standard method in general medical and urological practices for years, but also in private settings. We report a potential source of error in the measurement of protein content of urine in men which has never been addressed in the manufacturer's instructions or in other publications.

Hosted file

Urine Test Strips V1.pdf available at <https://authorea.com/users/410930/articles/544246-why-positive-results-from-protein-test-strips-in-urine-samples-in-men-can-put-the-patient-s-health-at-risk-due-to-over-treatment>